

Camaley Jennings

Camaley is a creative, forward-thinking partner advocate who offers extensive global experience working in the public sector.

She has proven ability to secure partners, donors, and members through a comprehensive approach to sales and marketing, managing the entire lifecycle from lead generation through account management. She also employs an entrepreneurial mindset to each role, taking ownership of outcomes and leveraging technology to enhance the client experience.

Camaley has a global, corporate, nonprofit and diverse background and has worked in high profile places like The White House. Prior to working with GitHub, Camaley served as ShareTheMeal Partnerships Manager with World Food Programme, Country Manager, U.S. for HomeToGo and an Intern, Office of Public Engagement for the Obama Administration.

Camaley is a fourth generation Arizonan and a Phoenix native.